Crisis Care Accommodation in Perth, WA Entrypoint Perth is a free assessment and referral service assisting people who are homeless or at risk of homelessness in Western Australia to access accommodation and support options. For individuals and families based in Perth, we can assess individual circumstances on the phone or in person; provide individuals with information on accommodation and support options to increase their chances of securing accommodation; if eligible, provide formal referrals to specialist homelessness services and other accommodation or support options; set up a time for an assessment and then refer to the most eligible appropriate services; assess individual circumstances of people and families experiencing domestic violence and, if eligible, provide formal referrals to crisis accommodation and support options. For individuals and families based in regional Western Australia, we can provide information on accommodation and support options to assist people to seek their own accommodation, and assess individual circumstances of people and families experiencing domestic violence and, if eligible, provide formal referrals to crisis accommodation and support options. If unable to get through to an Assessment and Referral Officer right away by phone, make sure to leave a clear phone message and provide contact information or complete the Online Registration Form. We will call back as soon as possible on the same day or the next working day. If the situation is urgent and personal circumstances are unsafe, please see our Emergency Contacts webpage.
