Bed and Breakfast, VIC Bishopscourt is a stately Victorian mansion (circa 1876), set on 1/2 acre of gardens in the heart of historic Bendigo. Bishopscourt has a rich and colorful history. Built for eminent surgeon and scientist Paul Howard MacGillivray as a private home and surgery, (the largest private residence in Bendigo at that time) Bishopscourt later spent 64 years as the Anglican Churches Bishops Palace, before coming into private ownership in the 1980's. As a guest, you will enjoy an atmosphere of comfort, spaciousness, and tranquillity. You may choose to relax in the shade of the oak tree, sit back in a sumptuous lounge in front of the open fire with a book selected from the extensive library, or even play a game of croquet in the lower garden. The Balfour room is a large room featuring a Queen Size Four-Poster bed, open fire, TV, CD, DVD, Foxtel, Free WiFi, and air-conditioning. The room also has the option of a full-size single fold-out bed. The Frew Room is actually two adjoining rooms featuring 2 Queen Size beds, a Single bed, Air-conditioning, TV, CD, DVD, Foxtel and Free WiFi. Bishopscourt Mews pampers guests with the best of both worlds. Set at the base of the Bishopscourt's gardens, the upstairs portion of the 125y/o Mews has been given a contemporary makeover with the highest quality fittings and furniture, while downstairs the original saddle hooks, loose boxes, and rustic paving remain. Bishopscourt Mews is perfectly located for the overnight getaway, weekend break or longer term stay.
